"Early in the Winter, I took a severe cold which developed into an obstinate, hacking cough, very painful to endure and troubling me day and night, for nine weeks, in spite of numerous remedies. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral being recommended me, I began to take it, and inside of 24 hours, I was relieved of the tickling in my throat. Before I finished the bottle, my cough was nearly gone. I cannot speak too highly of its excellence."—Mrs. E. BOSCH, Eaton, Ohio.

RUSSIA'S ARISTOCRACY.

It Embraces a Million Noblemen and Princesses Who Are Shopgirls.

Russia possesses 650,000 nobles without counting 350,000 whose titles are not hereditary. Among the Russian nobility there are many of foreign origin. The Russian social code recognizes four categories or estates (soslovia)—that is to say, nobles, priests, town dwellers and peasants. The character of their employment distinguishes these classes from one another. Each is dependent on the czar for all its privileges, and the emperor has absolute power to change the condition of his subjects from a high to a low estate. None of these classes possesses either a historical, a political or a social individuality.

The Russian aristocracy is deprived of political importance, and it cannot boast of such chivalrous qualities as distinguished the French nobles. For the present it lacks sufficient good sense or education to play any part in public life. Russian aristocrats all desire to be considered as direct descendants of the Boyars, merely because it is pleasant to be such, and thus get a position of social superiority. Their ambition goes no higher. The Boyars, like the feudal western landowners, are the descendants of the men who of old composed the Russian prince's army. The members of the Russian aristocracy have in great part retained their places at court, so that there can be encountered most of the old historic names. Children of both sexes inherit the titles of their parents.

The Russian aristocracy is distinguished by overweening pride and haughtiness, and at the same time there is often united to this, in a bizarre contrast, a certain snobbishness. Access to the circles of high society is very difficult. It is only possible to penetrate into them if well born and well connected. The Russians rarely abandon their titles, being too proud of them to quit them easily. A marriage between a poor gentleman and a rich stranger, or vice versa, is considered in this country as a shameful mesalliance, and the couple would not be received in the aristocratic salons of the capital. Tolstoi, as well as Prince Maschersky, director of the newspaper Grajdanine, has given in his novel very exact and graphic descriptions of Russian high life. But with all their innate pride the Russian great folk have never looked upon work as degrading. Thus, if need be, they will adopt with ease and without mauvaise honte any offices, any public charges. There is at St. Petersburg a prince who serves in the custom house, and many nobles and titled men become professors, schoolmasters, even actors. In a pastry cook shop at Moscow some princesses of high blood serve behind the counter. Others will become governesses, companions, housekeepers, telegraph clerks—in fact, will adopt any employment that may turn up.—Leisure Hour.

Goodhart's Joke.

"Yes, dear," said Mrs. Goodhart as she handed her husband his cup of coffee across the breakfast table, "I realize that we simply must economize, and I'm willing to do my part. I've thought of one way of economizing already."

"How is that?" asked Mr. Goodhart.

"Well, I'll tell you. I have a good sewing machine and plenty of time, and if you'll select the cloth I'll cut and make you that new pair of trousers you want my own self and save—why, Henry Goodhart, what is the matter with you? Mercy! The man is going into a fit. Here, Jane, bring some water! Go for the doctor, somebody! Help me to support him and keep him from falling out of his chair. What can the matter be? It looks like apoplexy. There! He breathes easier and has opened his eyes. Now, Henry, dear, what is it?"

"Nothing, my dear, nothing, only a sudden faintness. I'll get over it in a few minutes, and I—I—was just joking when I said that we had to begin economizing somewhere, only joking, my dear."—Detroit Free Press.

Boadicea's Undiscovered Tomb.

Boadicea's tomb still remains undiscovered. Mr. Read of the British museum has had the trench dug several feet beyond the center of the tumulus on Parliament hill without having found anything to show for whom that particular burying mound was raised. So far the net result of the county council's quest has been a leaden musket ball and some chips of china, but both of these are modern jetsam. There are indications, though, that a portion of the ground was disturbed about a century ago.

For the rest the soil remains as it was in the beginning, heaped up, as there is no doubt was the case, for the purpose of interring some distinguished personage. It is not uncommon, it seems, even in undisturbed "barrows," to draw a blank, for the rain and the slow processes of nature completely destroy all vestiges of human remains that may have been buried in them.—London Telegraph.

A Cold Weather Veil.

A cold weather veil that is a good substitute for the flimsy illusion is one of the finest cobweb crape. This material comes in various light shades for veiling and is much more becoming than net or tulle. These veils may be washed, if the thrifty wearer desire, in a light suds, made of clear water and a little castile soap. Don't rub the delicate stuff, but squeeze gently and rinse in clear water, to which a drop or two of white mucilage have been added. Dry carefully pinned down on a pillow.

Patron (angrily)—Bring me some lunch.

Restaurant Waiter—But you've already ordered a breakfast, sir!

Patron—Yes, but it was breakfast time then.—Chicago Record.

The battle of the Moat was a conflict before Medina between Mohammed and Abu Sofian. It was so called because most of the fighting was done in the moat that Mohammed had dug to protect the city from the besiegers.

SAFER THAN STEALING SIGNS.

Students May Have Them Painted to Order In a New York Shop.

In a side street east of Broadway is a sign which reads: "Novelties In Sign Painting. College Work a Specialty." Not having in a four years' course learned what need colleges have for any considerable supply of signs, the writer entered the shop to make inquiry. The proprietor was a small German, and he had two assistants. In reply to a few questions he told the following facts:

"I started in the business of sign painting about five years ago. Before I had been at it long I had numerous calls from college students who wanted special signs painted. They were in the habit of decorating their rooms with such plunder as beer signs, barbers' poles, advertising thermometers, etc., and some of them hit upon the idea of having special signs painted. Most of my business came from Columbia at first, but it soon spread to New Haven, Cambridge and Princeton, so that I now have two assistants.

"Of course cardboard are the cheapest signs, and the more ordinary kinds are made with stencil, such as 'Meals At All Hours' and 'Pay at the Desk.' Board signs, as 'Keep Off the Grass,' 'To Let,' are also stenciled and are consequently cheap. Hanging shop signs are dearer and have to be done by hand. I often have special orders, and some of the students have original ideas. For instance, there is a job for which I get $25. This is to be a 5 cent lunchroom sign which is supposed to have been broken off from the post on which it was fixed. It is to be supplied with legs and converted into a card table, and probably the owner will many times be obliged to recount the daring way in which he eluded the police with his plunder. There is a good demand for barber poles. Beer signs I buy to order and simply make my commission.

"Another queer fad is that of express labels, so that I have a small job printing establishment. Many men, especially glee club members, like to have their dress suit cases plastered with labels, especially of western and southern roads, to create the impression that they have been great travelers. You can hardly see the leather on some of these cases. Of course this is all very foolish, but it is very profitable to me. A fool and his money are soon parted."—New York Tribune.

Walter Burridge, the artist, tells a good story on himself and proves it by showing the blank space on the wall where the picture, one of the accessories of the tale, used to hang.

He went one day to the studio of a friend and found there an anatomical figure, such as are to be seen in studios everywhere. It was a good one, and Burridge wanted it, for his own had been broken. He expressed a desire to have it, but the artist friend wouldn't give it up for any money. It was his inspiration, he said. He needed it even for the composition of a letter. And, as for drawing anything in the human figure without it, that was simply hopeless. He couldn't spare it.

So Burridge went away. But another day, while in the same studio and in the absence of the owner, a third artist, who commonly shared the place and worked there, said Burridge could have the model if he wanted it. The owner had concluded to get along without it.

And about an hour after the owner came back. He sat down and tried to draw a wagon. But he couldn't. He tried to write a letter that had long been overdue. But he could not get his thoughts together.

"Something is gone," said he. "I can't do anything. I have lost something."

"Maybe it is your brains," said the man who shared his room. "Burridge has been over."

"The figure," cried the artist. "That is it." And he started out. When he came back, he brought not only the figure, but a water color sketch as well. It had taken Burridge days to complete the picture, and it marked one of the pleasantest events in his sojourn along the grand canyon of the Colorado.

But it squared him.—Chicago Herald.

Other People's Bread.

In dreary Kamchatka the pine or birch bark by itself, well macerated, pounded and baked, frequently constitutes the whole of the native bread food. Bread and butter to a young Kamchatkan is represented by dough of pine bark spread with seal fat, not a very appetizing combination to English notions. And not only the bark of the pine is thus utilized for food. The dwellers in certain parts of Siberia cut off the young and tender shoots and grind them down to form their flour. One imagines that the bread therefrom must have an unpleasantly resinous flavor.

In Iceland even the hardy pine is wanting, but the Icelander declares that "a bountiful Providence sends him bread out of the very stones." He scrapes a lichen—the Iceland moss—off the rocks and grinds it into fine flour, which serves him both for bread and puddings, and also as a thickening for his broth. Thus, truly, has stern experience taught him to live where most would starve.—Chambers' Journal.

Economical Fuel.

An economical fuel can be made as follows: Small coal, charcoal or sawdust, 1 part; clay or loam, 1 part; sand or ashes, 2 parts, with enough water to make the mass into stiff balls. These should be placed upon an ordinary fire to a height which is slightly above the bars. They produce a heat considerably more intense than that emitted by ordinary fuel and effect a saving of one-half the ordinary quantity of coals, while a fire thus made up will require neither stirring nor fresh fuel for eight or ten hours.—New York Dispatch.

CHARACTER IN WINDOW SHADES.

They Tell Tales About the Inmates of the House, a Young Woman Says.

"I don't know anything about the front of a house that more clearly indicates the character and condition of the inmates than the window shades," said a young woman of observation. "If you see the shades all drawn down to precisely the same level in every window, you can tell at once that the house is occupied by a single family and that the mistress is of a severely orderly spirit. There'll not be a thing out of its accustomed place in that house, you can rest assured. If the shades of all the up stairs windows are drawn down to the top of the bottom sash, while those of the parlor are drawn clear down, you can safely judge the family of that house to be one of those essentially domestic ones that live mostly up stairs, where the bedroom is at once the wife's sewing room and the husband's library and where the parlor is only opened on state occasions. If the bedroom window blinds in the middle story are half way down while those on the top floor and of the parlor are away up, you won't be wrong in saying that that house is ruled by the young folks, who are going to have a flood of sunshine in their bedrooms even if it does fade out the matting and who are not going to have the parlor smelling like a musty old church.

"The room with that one window blind run clear up to the top is occupied by a man, and if you see the window shades at different heights you take it for granted that they have let lodgings there or that the housekeeping is of a decidedly frousy character. One of the most unfailingly indicative shades is that which runs diagonally across the window, with one corner close under the roller and the other half away down the sash. The woman of that window is a slattern, and it's babies to bodkins that the growler is rarely empty there.

"These are, of course, only the broad indications of the character reading that may be done from the position and wag of the eyelids of a house, for I suppose it is not forcing a figure of speech to say that if the windows are the eyes of a house the shades are the lids and can be held primly straight or give a drunken wink."—New York Sun.

HUNTING PYTHONS IN NATAL.

Burn Forests and Dig Pits to Capture the Immense Reptiles.

The colony of Natal, South Africa, abounds in boa constrictors and pythons. While they do not attack men they are especially destructive of cattle, sheep and oxen, and for this reason parties are formed by hunters and natives to burn the bush and forest in order to exterminate the pests. Some of the soldiers at Pietermaritzburg were recently informed by a party of neighboring Zulus of the whereabouts of a huge python that had been destroying their oxen.

The soldiers, with 200 natives, started off to capture the snake, and having located it the forest was fired for about a mile roundabout, an enormous pit having been previously dug in toward the center of the inclosed space. What with the burning brush and the shouts of the Kaffirs they soon drove the reptile toward the pit, whore, closing in upon him, they forced him into it. The python proved to be of enormous size, being 32 feet long and 41 inches in circumference. It appeared to be quite stupid or dazed, having just eaten a young ox that had been led into the inclosure.

An enormous cage, with iron bars half way down the front, having been constructed, the snake was got out of the pit and taken to Maritzburg in the cage. Here it is kept on exhibition at the barracks, and it is fed twice a week two Kaffir goats at each meal. It will not eat anything that has been already killed for it, preferring to kill its food itself. The goats are thrust through a small door at the end of the cage alive, when, fixing its great eyes upon them, the snake suddenly lunges forward and crushes them in its powerful folds. After covering them with a thick slime almost an inch deep before swallowing, it flattens them out by squeezing them and then swallows them almost at a gulp. After this the python goes to sleep and does not awake until it is time to feed again.—London Telegraph.

I and You.

Miss Frances Power Cobbe tells a story in her autobiography which well illustrates that even to intelligent and forceful persons I is big and you very small: "At one of the pleasant gatherings at Mrs. Peter Taylor's, which will not be forgotten by those who had the good fortune to be invited on her open evenings at Aulney house, Miss Mary Carpenter remarked, 'It is a thousand pities that everybody will not join and give the whole of their minds to the great cause of the age, because if they would we should carry it undoubtedly.' 'What is the great cause of the age?' we simultaneously exclaimed. 'Parliamentary reform?' said our host, Mr. Peter Taylor; 'The abolition of slavery?' said Miss Redmond, a negress, Mrs. Taylor's companion; 'Teetotalism?' said another; 'Woman's suffrage?' said another; 'The conversion of the world to Theism?' said I. In the midst of the clamor Miss Carpenter looked serenely round. 'Why, the industrial school bill, of course.' No one enjoyed the joke, when we all began to laugh, more than the reformer herself."

Rings as Marks of Tree Growth.

Mr. James Stewart, one of the most intelligent horticulturists of the south, says in a note on the annual ring growth of trees that he knew a case of a tree 25 years old which, when cut down, exhibited 75 concentric rings. The name of the tree is not given.—Meehan's Monthly.

FACT AND FANCY.

BY JEDWIN NEBWAME.

"In every country where two legal moneys are in circulation the bad money always drives out the good." The different conditions under which we find this law working were pointed out in my last letter. The fact that the moneys are legal must be borne in mind, for unless they are legal there is not anything peculiar or remarkable in the law.

These two legal moneys may be gold and silver, silver and copper, paper and gold, or any other combination. Gold and silver, however, have been adopted by most nations that have declared themselves in favor of a double standard. The reasons for choosing these metals are evident when a little thought is given the subject. Money is a medium of exchange, so it is necessary that it be easy of transport. It is well that it be easily known and that it be always the same, so chemical elements have been chosen. It should be with difficulty counterfeited. Gold and silver serve this end. Because we have need of many different sums money should be easily divisible—gold and silver are so; that is, when we divide money the value decreases in exact proportion to the fractional division. One-half of a twenty-dollar gold piece is worth ten dollars. Lastly, it should be indefinitely durable. This condition is met in gold and silver.

Now we come to the proposition concerning which there is considerable comment: "All legal money should have an intrinsic value rigorously equal to its nominal value." Its nominal value is that value which it has by force of law. Its intrinsic value is that value which it has in the metal markets of the world. When these two values coincide the money is said to be right. A silversmith will not give you a twenty-dollar gold piece for twenty silver dollars because he can buy the same weight of pure silver for less money. In the United States the intrinsic value of the silver dollar is not equal to the nominal value, consequently we have trouble.

What is the objection to the single standard—gold? The bimetalist answers: There is not enough of it to carry on the business of the world. What is the objection to the double standard—gold and silver? The monometalist answers: We cannot have two standards because, by the law of supply and demand, the relative values are bound to change, just as they have in the past. This needs no illustration, but I give one. If the output of silver increases when the output of gold remains stationary the relative values of the two metals will change—more silver than was before necessary will be required to buy an ounce of gold. So the value of the silver dollar depreciates or the money becomes light.

Now, some of the questions that are uppermost in the minds of our financial legislators are these: Can the United States in conformity with true business principles accept the double standard, and, if so, at what ratio? If the United States cannot do so alone can the different countries of the civilized world acting together do so? In considering these questions bear in mind that the Government cannot create value where value does not exist. Gresham's Law will obtain so soon as the legal and intrinsic values do not coincide. In order then that there may be stability it is necessary that some method be devised which will insure parity of value.

Perhaps in my next letter something may be said concerning the different plans suggested.

THE right of women to vote is far more general abroad than most people are aware. They vote at all elections except for members of Parliament in Great Britain. School suffrage is given them in France and Norway. In Sweeden they vote on all officers except those that are strictly representative. Widows vote in Italy for members of Parliament. Women who are householders vote throughout Russia and its provinces. Municipal suffrage is given to the people of New Zealand and in the Madras and Bombay presidencies of India. In Austrio-Hungary women vote by proxy for elective officers and in Croatia and Dalmatia in person at local elections. In most of the provinces in the Dominion of Canada women enjoy municipal suffrage and in Iceland and the Isle of Man women are equal before the law to men in the exercise of the elective franchise.—Oakland Tribune.

The exposure to all sorts and conditions of weather that a lumberman is called upon to endure in the camps often produces severe colds which, if not promptly checked, result in congestion or pneumonia. Mr. J. O. Davenport, ex-manager of the Fort Bragg Redwood Company, an immense institution at Fort Bragg, Cal., says they sell large quantities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the company's store and that he has himself used this remedy for a severe cold and obtained immediate relief. This medicine prevents any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia and insures a prompt recovery. For sale by all dealers. *

Spring Medicine

Is a necessity because the tonic of winter air is gone, and milder weather, increased moisture, accumulated impurities in the blood and debilitated condition of the body, open the way for that tired feeling, nervous troubles, and other ills. The skin, mucous membrane and the various organs strive in vain to relieve the impure current of life. They all welcome to assist Nature at this time when she most needs help, to purify the blood, tone and strengthen the laboring organs and build up the nerves.

"I was not able to wait on myself and could not gain any strength until I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla about three months ago. Now I am doing my housework. My right lung was badly effected, and in the spring and summer I was very weak, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has done me much good and I have great confidence in it." MRS. E. R. KNIGHT, Tecumseh, Okla.

It always does the work and does it well." For sale by all dealers. *

The storm which set in on Monday morning and terminated on Tuesday night last caused Sonoma Creek to overflow its banks at Embarcadero, and the Goodman and other ranches in that part of the valley were inundated for the third time this season. At times the precipitation was tremendous. The rainfall for the two days according to Robert Hall's rain gauge was 3.51 inches. The total rainfall for the season ending Wednesday morning was 23.40 inches.

A. Pinelli purchased this week from the Tivnen heirs the "Blue Wing" property on Spain street, for $425. The property has a frontage of 122 feet on that street and is 190 feet in depth. The improvements consist of a two-story adobe building, built forty or fifty years ago, of little value. The price paid for the property is considered a great bargain for Mr. Pinelli. Had the sale been public instead of private the property would undoubtedly have found several buyers at double that figure. Mr. Pinelli has already been offered $800 for his purchase.

Eugene Donaldson received a few slight injuries about the body last Wednesday. He was standing behind the seat of a heavy two-horse wagon which was loaded with grain and the driver, while endeavoring to make a short turn in front of McHarvey's blacksmith shop, broke the reach of the wagon, causing the front wheels to separate from the bed throwing Eugene to the ground. He was immediately followed by several sacks of grain which fell directly across his body crushing him to the earth. Several bystanders ran to his rescue and dragged him from his perilous position. He was then assisted into a wagon and taken to the Hyde ranch, where he is employed, but at latest accounts he was up and around, feeling rather sore, however.

Death of Emil Pauli.

The news of the death of Emil H. Pauli in San Francisco last Tuesday night was received with sorrow by his many young friends in Sonoma. The deceased was the youngest son of the late G. T. Pauli. He was born in Sonoma on November 11th, 1865, and spent his boyhood and young manhood days in this city. A few years ago he removed to San Francisco, where he engaged in the book-binding business. For several years past his health has been very poor, being a victim to consumption, which finally ended his earthly career.

Young Pauli was a charter member of the Sonoma Parlor, No. 111, N. S. G. W., and also a charter member of the Sonoma Volunteer Firemen. As a Native Son and a Firemen he held important positions of trust in both organizations, and was a great favorite with every one with whom he was thrown in contact.

The deceased leaves a large number of relatives and friends to mourn his untimely taking off. The Misses Carrie and Paulina Pauli of San Francisco and Mrs. Harry Eaton (nee Eloisa Pauli) of New York City are sisters and Albert F. Pauli of this place is a brother of the deceased.

The remains of deceased were brought to Sonoma yesterday morning for interment in Mountain Cemetery, where they will repose beside his father and mother.

The funeral took place from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Pauli at 12 o'clock, the remains being followed to the cemetery by a large concourse of relatives and friends, the following old friends of deceased acting as pall-bearers: G. S. Harris, L. H. Green, Geo. Breitenbach, J. E. Poppe, Wm. F. Wilson and G. H. Hotz.

The Income Tax.

All persons having a net income of $3,500 must make a return on blanks furnished by the Collector or Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue.

A net income is the income over and above all actual business expenses and losses, which are to be deducted from the gross income. Living expenses, including household expenses, doctors bills, expenses of pleasure and personal expenses cannot be deducted from the gross income, but must be included in the net income.

The income tax is levied on all net personal incomes above $4,000, but it is only levied on the amount exceeding $4,000. It is levied, however, on the entire net income of banks and corporations.

Persons having a net income of $3,500 must make out and file a return.

All returns must be filed with the Collector or Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue on or before March 1st, and the tax, if any, must be paid to the same officers on or before July 1st. Heavy penalties are provided and will be imposed on persons who fail to make return or attempt to evade the tax.

The blanks upon which returns must be made contain full and explicit instructions concerning the income tax and the manner of making out the returns.

The Collector of Internal Revenue for this, the Fourth District, is Hon. W. Stairley of Sacramento, and the Deputy Collector of this, the Sixth Division of said district, is J. Buckingham of Ukiah, who will furnish blanks to all persons requiring them and to whom returns should be made.

Firemen's Banquet.

The Sonoma Volunteer Firemen held their annual banquet at the Toscano Hotel last Wednesday evening. About twenty-five of "de fellahs as wot runs wid de machine" were present, together with a number of invited guests, among the latter being D. D. Davisson, Sonoma's pioneer resident, J. H. Seipp, President of the Board of City Trustees and Lawyer Fred. T. Duhring. The spread furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Ciucci was most excellent. The wine, which was rich, old and rare, was donated by Messrs. Carl Dresel, George Engler and Julius E. Poppe. During the evening interesting speeches were made by Messrs. Duhring, Davisson and Seipp and the necessity of a better water system was pointed out. The cannery proposition and other improvements were also discussed, in all of which Mr. Duhring, who is one of Sonoma's most wealthy citizens, was heartily in accord.

Toasting and speech making, interspersed with the jingling of glasses and the sparkling of wine, was indulged in until 12 o'clock when the festivities came to a close with three rousing cheers, proposed by Mr. Davisson, for the Sonoma Volunteer Fire Department.

THE DONAHUE ROAD.

At a regular meeting of the Railroad Commissioners held in San Francisco on Wednesday afternoon a letter was received from R. X. Ryan of the San Francisco & North Pacific Railroad Company in reply to an attack lately made upon it by President Ink of the Cloverdale Town Council. Mr. Ryan's caustic reply reads as follows;

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb, 11, 1895.

To the Honorable Board of Railroad Commissioners: GENTLEMEN—I beg leave to acknowledge the receipt of a copy of a communication to your Honorable Board. It is signed by Mr. W. P. Ink.

He addresses you: "As a citizen of the town of Cloverdale, Sonoma county, a veteran of the late war and President of the Town Council of Cloverdale, and a patron of the North Pacific Railroad."

It is not to be assumed that he is the exponent of the Town Council of Cloverdale, for that body took no action, and to a number, if not to all the other members, his communication was unknown until they saw it printed in the San Francisco daily papers.

His position as a patron of the road is based on a very limited patronage. As a passenger he very seldom uses the road and as a shipper a very careful examination of our records shows that he neither forwarded or received one single pound of freight during the year 1894.

Naturally, therefore, his communication is not in the form of a complaint, and he so states as he writes, "It is my opinion." The opinion as given is an emphatic expression against the company, stated in very broad and general terms.

In support of his denunciation he attacks four expense bills as a comparative argument. These represent shipments consigned to other parties in Cloverdale, in which he personally had no interest whatever.

Three of these shipments are from the East, and his remarks in presenting the expense bills are as follows:

"I enclose you freight bills, gentlemen, which fully establish my position. Just think of it, $37 on a carload lot from Chicago, Ill., to San Francisco, and from this point to Cloverdale, a distance of only 84 miles, $34."

The expense bills referred to prove the absolute incorrectness of his statement, as the amount shown is much greater than $37.

Owing to the peculiar conditions governing overland traffic, the charges on this class of freight from the East to San Francisco or Sacramento are phenomenally low. His application that the revenue of the expense bills, which is about three mills per ton per mile for the long haul on these overland shipments should be used as the basis for making rates on our short roads would be impracticable. The cost of this company for the last fiscal year in transporting freight was 3 29-100 cents per mile.

Yours respectfully,
R. X. RYAN,
General Freight Agent.

This communication, after being read, was referred to Chairman La Rue of the commission, who was authorized to make necessary investigations and report upon the matter as soon as practicable.

Death of a Pioneer.

Henry A. Pickett died at his home in the eastern suburbs of town last Monday morning of Bright's disease.

The deceased came to California in 1852 with his parents, Mr. and Wm. Pickett, being at that time thirteen years of age. After a residence of several years in San Francisco the family came to Sonoma in the early sixties and made their home at "Mapel Lodge," where the aged parents of Mr. Pickett still reside.

For a number of years the deceased was a Justice of the Peace of Sonoma Township, which office he filled with great credit. Of late years he has acted as manager of "Mapel Lodge" farm and has kindly attended to the wants of his aged parents, who have long since passed three score years and ten. Besides his father and mother Mr. Pickett leaves a sister, Mrs. Dr. E. S. Hayward of Rochester, New York, and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn his demise.

The deceased was a native of New Jersey and aged 56 years. His funeral took place Tuesday afternoon, the remains being interred in Mountain Cemetery.

A child's bed should always be placed so that the light shall come from one side. If it be allowed to strike in front or behind the head it would have a tendency to make the child crosseyed.

In making over last year's evening dresses a successful effect may be produced by using the old sleeves for the waist and the old skirt for the sleeves, in which event the skirt will have to be of a different material altogether.

All wooled dresses should be hung out in the air and sunshine at least once in a fortnight. This will not only render them fresh and sweet, but it will also take out creases as nothing else except a tailor's iron will.

The bodice that fastens invisibly under the arm and on the left shoulder is a great favorite and adds much to the bringing out of a good figure. It is impossible to fasten it one's self. But when once it is fastened the wearer enjoys the distinction of looking as if she had been melted and poured in.

The Misses Lola and Natalie Haraszthy pleasantly entertained a number of young friends at their home in the western suburbs of town one night this week. The evening was passed in social converse and vocal and instrumental music, much to the delight of those present.

A woman noted for the frothy lightness of the mashed potato served at her board confesses to no secret in its preparation, "except, perhaps, the pinch of baking powder, which I add along with the little milk and butter that everybody puts in." She has the mixture beaten hard and fast with a fork and one of all these things contributes to a most successful whole.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt is a very retiring, conservative woman, and while her home, which covers half a block and is the largest in New York, requires the care of many servants, there is no undue extravagance, and the amount spent for housekeeping would not exceed that of her sisters-in-law for their much smaller houses. It is a strange thing, but many of the servants who have worked for Mrs. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Sloane and Mrs. Seward Webb for several years have never seen their mistress closer than a peep at them through the upper windows as the ladies entered their carriages. The housekeeper is virtual mistress; she hires them, pays them their wages and presents them with the Christmas gifts, which are carefully selected and always worth the having.

Exciting Runaway.

Miss Melvina Palastre of El Verano narrowly escaped being seriously injured last Sunday morning. She was driving in a cart along Napa street when the horse shyed at a small fire that was burning in the middle of the street in front of D. H. Twing's real estate office. Taking the whip from the socket she hit the horse across the back with it, which caused the animal to kick and get one hind leg over the shaft. Leaping up over the curbing the horse ran along the sidewalk until he reached the Union Hotel when he again crossed the street and ran between two hitching posts at the corner of First-street West and Napa street. When the runaway animal reached McHarvey's blacksmith shop the young lady was thrown violently from the cart to the ground, receiving several injuries about the body, which fortunately are not of a serious nature. After continuing on his mad career a few blocks further the horse was finally brought to a halt by Jerry Linehan in front of the Pinelli building on First-street East.

Rancher Kelley Robbed.

John Kelley, an aged rancher who lives in the mountains west of Sonoma, sold a band of cattle last Wednesday to a stock dealer, receiving $195 in cash. He secreted the money in a mattress and left the house to assist the vaqueros in rounding up the cattle. When he returned shortly after he found the money had disappeared together with his hired man, Frank Doyle by name. It is supposed Doyle took the money, as he was present when it was paid to his employer. Suspicion also pointed to Jerry O'Brien, who was arrested by Marshal Collins of Petaluma.

Where the Money Went.

One hundred dollars of the fine of $300 paid by Reynolds, Robbins and Shire, recently convicted for fishing illegally with a seine in Russian River, went to John Babcock, the informer. District Attorney Seawell, who prosecuted the men, also received $100 and the balance went into the State Treasury.

GLEN ELLEN.

Mrs. Helen Wright and family have removed to Santa Clara.

We learn that the usual Sunday picnics will again be held here the coming Summer.

Ben. and Ed. Thierkoff are plowing and seeding to hay considerable land on their farm.

The Glen Ellen Grange will give a social hop in Native Son's Hall next Saturday evening.

If the weather permits work will soon be commenced on the new Congregational Church at this place.

The roadmen are quite busy repairing bridges and culverts in this vicinity which were somewhat damaged by the recent storm.

F. Lemoine of San Francisco, who recently purchased a farm north of town, is making some extensive improvement on the same.

Postmaster Poppe is receiving daily forecasts of the weather by telegraph from Washington, D. C., which are of considerable value to the farmers in this vicinity.

Some hungry canines killed several sheep in the slaughter house grounds of Mr. Beatty one night this week. George loaded his gun and laid for them on the following evening with the result that there is one dog less in the community.

THE PROCLAMATION.

WORKING UP SENTIMENTS APPROPRIATE TO THANKSGIVING.

A Rough Draft Goes the Rounds and Picks Up Additions In Inks of All Colors—Finally Engrossed on Cream Colored, Gilt Edged Paper and Signed.

The concoction of that time honored document, the Thanksgiving proclamation, which sails forth annually as the impromptu expression of the national executive's religious gratitude, is the terror of the state department. Every year it is called upon to produce something new in that line, and its efforts to say the same thing in a different way, to avoid if possible verbatim copying of last year's letter, is one of the venerable jokes of the diplomatic greenroom.

About the first or second week of November, everybody knowing that the day falls on the last Thursday of that month, the chief clerk or some assistant secretary suggests that it is time to think about the "proclamation."

The chief clerk accordingly runs down the list of drafting clerks, ascertains which of Uncle Sam's servants is at the time basking in innocuous desuetude and dispatches to the delinquent by messenger an order to get up a draft for the proclamation.

This rouses the clerk from his lethargy. He rises to the situation with alacrity. His first inspiration is to turn out a paper different from its predecessors. The second arrests the divine afflatus. What on earth can he say that has not been said?

He writes the word "whereas" and pauses. In despair, at length, he turns for help to the classics—that is, he consults what Van Buren, Tyler and Fillmore have said in past years and makes that a groundwork for a draft. This embryo proclamation is then sent, through the chief clerk, to the assistant secretaries.

The first touch up the document receives is the insertion of a lot of capital H's for deification, which the clerk has forgotten in the throes of composition. Then an assistant secretary, finding it remiss in pious fervor, proceeds to insert piety with red ink marginal notes.

Thus the word prayer is followed by "songs of praise," and "tribute of gratitude" is bracketed after worship. So long, so faithfully has this servant of the people discharged this self appointed task that he is known in office parlance as the "divine invocator."

Thus revised the draft proceeds to some other grand mogul of the diplomatic greenroom, who finds that now that the Deity has been duly attended to something complimentary is due the nation at large. So carets, in blue pencil, insert "our prosperity and greatness," the "labors of our people" or "our marts of trade and traffic."

This tricolor draft is now handed around again and encounters an official in a new vein. His lunch did not agree with him. He is in a penitent mood. Seizing a pencil, he adds "that we have not been visited with swift punishment for our shortcomings."

Another handles the document and finds that it is too general, fails to identify the year, so he brings in a few master strokes in purple indelible pothooks alluding to the "deadly march of pestilence," "afflictive dispensation" and "fury of the elements."

The document now seems to meet the requirements. It is sent to an engrossing clerk, who proceeds to "fecit secundum artem," like a drug clerk making up a prescription. There are rules to be observed, rules as inviolable as those governing the Bank of England. A certain cream colored gilt edged paper is used. An elaborately ornamental title is flourished half way down the page in old German capital script announcing "A Proclamation by the President of the United States." The original whereas has met with many vicissitudes during the travels of the draft.

Restored to its proper dignity, the chief difficulty now is to disentangle the many colored insertions which crawl like caterpillars all over the sheet. By standing on his head, squinting on the bias or thumping his guessing bump to its utmost the engrossing clerk at last turns out a highly respectable and decorous looking document.

He submits it to the chief clerk. Meanwhile he waits in nervous suspense lest it be returned with a request for another copy or be disfigured by the insertion of more colored caterpillars.

If the engrossed copy is approved, it is taken to the White House. The executive may or may not read it. It's pretty safe to say he does not, but he never fails to sign it. With the president's signature it returns to the state department.

The original is filed in the "Book of Credence," a somber, venerable volume exhaling an old time aroma from its yellow time stained pages, which preserves from the foundation of our glorious republic the proclamations of all our executives in exquisite script, for the typewriter, that cruel electrocutor of the epistolary art, has yet to desecrate the precious flies of the state archives.

Before seeking its mausoleum, however, a typewritten copy of the Thanksgiving proclamation is given out to the press, and the millions of readers think what a very pious, God fearing man is the president.—New York World.

Economical.

The Boston Transcript has heard of an economical man. He is a locksmith, and needing a sign he went to a sign painter and got an estimate for lettering. Then he nailed two locks to a board and asked the painter to paint after them the word "mith." The Philadelphia Ledger suggests, however, that it would have been cheaper to have used only one lock and paid the painter for an "s."

A WANT.

I'm looking for some pretty girl,
Of modest, quiet mien,
Who dresses well, knows how to spell
And has a wit that's keen.

I want no fickle weather vane
That turns with every wind.
I think a blond would suit me best.
She must be swell, refined.

She must be constant as a star—
No meteor would do—
And, like her own sweet little self,
Her grammar must be true.

Yet more, if she would be with me
(Excuse the slang) right "in it,"
She must be able to take down
One hundred words a minute.

LINCOLN AND M'CLELLAN.

The Latter Was Kept In Command Because of Public Feeling.

Just before the battle of Chancellorsville I visited the Army of the Potomac, its headquarters being then at Falmouth, in President Lincoln's company. We were detained en route by a storm and spent one night on board the steamer anchored in the Potomac. In the course of conversation that evening the president was communicative and in a confidential mood and discussed the military situation with much freedom. Speaking of McClellan he said, "I kept McClellan in command after I had expected that he would win victories simply because I knew that his dismissal would provoke popular indignation and shake the faith of the people in the final success of the war."

Very soon after the battle of Chancellorsville and before the battle of Gettysburg was fought the old rumor of McClellan's recall again got upon its legs, to the great consternation of many of Lincoln's friends in Washington. This report was more than usually vigorous and plausible. Hooker's failure at Chancellorsville and the blow which his military prestige had suffered in consequence gave public opinion a decidedly sharp fillip. One evening, while this rumor was gaining strength, I chanced to be in the family sitting room at the White House, where the president, Mrs. Lincoln and several callers were assembled, when an indiscreet young lady directly attacked Lincoln with the extraordinary question:

"Mr. President, is McClellan going to be recalled to the command of the Army of the Potomac?"

The president good naturedly parried this home thrust, but gave no satisfactory answer. Afterward joining in the conversation, I intimated to the president that as he had not settled the matter there probably might be some ground for the general suspicion that McClellan would be recalled. Lincoln, who sat near me, put on a very severe look, and turning said in an undertone, "And you too?" I instantly recalled our conversation on the steamer and apologized for my lack of faith. He then added, "I see you remember the talk we had on the Carrie Martin."—Noah Brooks in Century.

Russian Justice.

General Van Wahl, chief constable of the police of St. Petersburg, when he was governor at Kiev, received a visit one day from a poor woman, widow of a police agent who had fallen a victim to duty. For a long time she had solicited the pension which was due her. The head of the police to whom she had addressed her demand paid no attention to her plea.

In her distress the widow went to the governor and told him her story.

"Ah, yes, we'll see what can be done," said General Wahl. "Sit down there and write what I tell you," pointing to a writing table.

The widow took a seat and wrote from the governor's dictation a long supplication. "Now address it," he said, "and wait for me in the next room."

A few minutes later the woman was recalled, and the general gave into her hands a sealed letter, saying the while to her, "Take this letter to the head constable, take care not to open it, and come back to me as soon as you have a reply."

A week afterward the woman appeared at the palace again. Her pension had been granted, and she thanked the governor with joy.

"It is useless to thank me. I am nothing in the affair," said he, and immediately gave the following order:

"The head of the police at Kiev is dismissed from his post and sent into exile; the reason, because he granted a demand after receiving a sum of money for so doing."

General Wahl had, unknown to the woman, slipped into her letter a bank note for 25 rubles, which accounted for her supplication being granted.—Youth's Companion.

A Big Calculation In Water.

The ocean, sea and lake surface of our planet is estimated at something like 145,000,000 square miles, with an average depth of 12,000 feet, and is calculated to contain not less than 3,270,600,000,000,000 tons of water. The rivers of the earth are estimated to have a flow sufficient to cover 36 cubic miles of the above area each day. Now, if all the oceans were suddenly dried and the rivers could keep up their present rate of flow, which, of course, they could not without ocean evaporation, it would take 3,500 years to refill the basin.—St. Louis Republic.

Puzzled.

"Answer by return male" was the way the letter wound up that Miss Footlites received from Mr. Suddenrox. "I wonder," said she, "whether he means by the messenger boy or by post."—Indianapolis Journal.

At the discovery of America maize was grown by the Indian tribes from Patagonia to Hudson bay. In Mexico and Peru its origin was attributed to the gods.

Elizabeth, N. J., was so called after the Lady Elizabeth, wife of Sir George Carteret.
